PETER BENSTER

A Poem About Peter

There once was a boy named Peter,
Such a boy could never be sweeter.
From the little red bench to the little gold pin,
Jumping fences and drinking gin (not really).
From jogging suits and mushroom cuts,
To the favorite of all those Sacred Heart ~~S~~
He aspired to be a Backstreet Boy,
But he just ended up as Lynda's toy.

We love you Peter

- Sideshow Bob

O.O.O.O.

"Raay! Dat wun wadt der bee grauatn frum haaaih scoo!" Matt's (a.k.a. Brail, Russ Jr.) ability to pay attention in class was so astounding that Russ Sr. actually came out of retirement to join in the pleasure of teaching his son. We're still pissed at Matt. Although he reminded us on a daily basis that he was "manly," he spent most of his high school career taking POTTERY classes; he's still not very good at it though. You could always find him in one of three places, while at school, the court, the bathroom, or physio. Nobody really knows what Matt's going to do with his life, but I can see him doing something in dermatology, for he's become an expert on skin ailments over the years (so has everyone else that knows him). But, whatever he chooses to do, he'll succeed. He doesn't know how not to. He's going to missed around here, but mostly because he's not going to be welcome anywhere else. The triangle is a square.

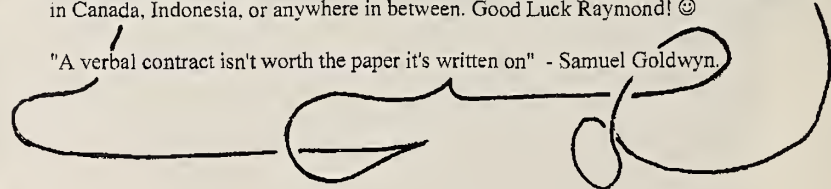

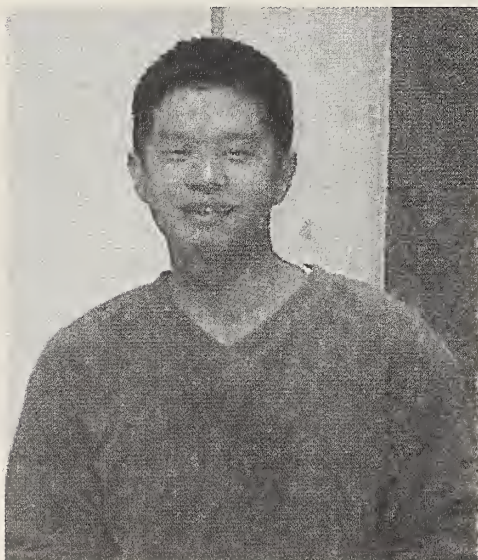

THE BENSTER

RAYMOND EVANA

Raymond is well known at HGS for his friendly disposition and his many amazing magic tricks. He is always ready with a smile, whether you find him telling spooky Indonesian ghost stories, practicing sleight of hand, or bemoaning his academic fate. ("English is hard, man!") His kind personality and many talents will take him for in life whether he is in Canada, Indonesia, or anywhere in between. Good Luck Raymond! ©

"MEAN KINES"

"I've always been enthralled by the Phantom of the Opera...who is that man behind the mask?!"

-Adrian

A lot of people say the sky's the limit, but I disagree. I see the ground as a much more relevant limit. Megan Caines' greatest accomplishment is, in my opinion, going to this school for 13 years and remaining relatively sane. How did she do it? I don't know. On an unrelated note, what's the deal with that Adrian guy? There's a real piece of work right there, eh? I mean really, come on now, who is this guy? Am I right?

"TIMOTHY CALEY"

Timothy Caley

Throughout his four years at HGS, Tim could usually be seen "getting his hack on" either outside or in a classroom. Besides representing his Manx pride, Tim would rave about Liverpool FC and English Football to anyone who would listen. However Tim might be best remembered for laughing hysterically without being able to stop and his close encounters with a burning bag of beads.

WHAT KIND OF IDEA ARE YOU? Are you the kind that compromises, does deals, accommodates itself to society, aims to find a niche, to survive; or are you the cussed, bloody-minded, ramrod-backed type of damnfool notion that would rather break than sway with the breeze? - The kind that will almost certainly, ninety-nine times out of a hundred, be smashed to bits; but, the hundredth time, will change the world.

Awww maaaaan! – Eilidh

If I were to sell you this chair for the unbelievable price of $3000... - Mr. Rodney/Matt Boyle

Alex is a shining example of what a young man should be today. He is a trustworthy, intelligent, and hardworking lad, with far to go in the future. He treats other with great respect – especially the female students, who, in turn, admire and adore him. The male students find this hard, but justified, as they share in the girls' envy. Alex's contribution to the Grammar School has been the source of all the life, and he will be greatly missed.

Alex says: "The year would have been more fun with more alcohol, but we had a great time with the little we had."

KATRINA ELLIS

Katrina Ellis

Buon Giorno, Principessa!

Ever the optimist, Kat kept smiling through her treks from the Dartmouth ghetto ("He won't stop staring at me!!"). Kat seems to have a secret life in Dartmouth and Bathurst (maybe it's the CIA thing). But she always gave us glimpses into the crazy downshore melodramas (we don't care what you say, boys that get hatchets stuck in their head are just not attractive). We suppose we'll let you move back to good old Italy as long as we can come visit you and go sailing with Italian boys – all three of us this time! Don't get angry and punch someone in the eye or pull someone into your fist – you could do some real damage! Remember big kid parties (I know you love him but get off the damn phone so we can go to the party!), heated kitchen floors, tea parties and dock nights – does this wood smell funny to you because I stunk for a week! Try and control that road rage, at least with old men because they are just so cute! Catch ya in Cancun!!

My four years at HGS have been great. I wasn't sure what to expect when I came here in grade nine, but it all turned out okay. I hope to stay in touch with everybody and I wish good luck and success to all.

Kirsten has been with HGS ever since Grade 10. She has made large contributions on the Senior Girls Basketball Team, and her presence will be greatly missed. Good luck to you in all your future endeavors, Kirsten!

LINDSAY (aka. Bucky, Iggy, Busty) walked into Grammar with her short hair and glasses in her grade 9 year. Though today she still doesn't look any older than a grade 9, Lindsay has grown (not physically) into a wonderful, sweet person. Lindsay could always be found in the gym, in the middle of a year long 44 tournament, and who could forget the "lovely" sight that Matt Boyle displayed one day on a trip upstairs from the gym. Better yet, who can forget seeing Lindsay in a fetal position at the bottom of the stairs after a painful wedgie. Lindsay is tons of fun to be around, and is always ready for a new experience, whether it be a hit and run, heckling pedestrians on the street or an amazing trip to Florida, Lindsay's done it all. Her artistic ability showed through in her performance art, which she did almost as gracefully as when she walked smack into the door at school (on several occasions) or when she split her pants open in front of Tom. Despite Lindsay's endless embarrassing moments, nobody can deny that she's going to be successful in the end... and if she's not, she'll just move in with one of her friends who is successful, bringing along "all her animals." Best of luck Linds-Binds! We all love you, and will miss you tons, you little snap. And oh yes, don't get lost in the jungle, it can be wild in there! Hahaha LOVE YOU!

"A friend is one who knows you and loves you just the same."

Top Five Reasons you might be Lisa Goldberg:

5. You can kick yourself in the face.
4. You know all the words to Sir Mixalot's "Baby Got Back."
3. You left your heart in Florence, Italy.
2. You can pole dance like nobody's business.
1. You are too damn cute.

Lisa came to HGS for grade five, a precocious, bubbly girl on a continuous sugar-high. Since then, she's become much taller. Whether she is presiding over official business as Head Girl, shaking her booty on the dance floor (in pants, always in pants!), or putting Picasso to shame in the art studio, Lisa G. knows how to get the job done. And I mean DONE. Good luck in the future Lisa, and may you marry "a nice Jewish boy."

"Life is a stage, calling you to dance."

"Truly great friends are hard to find, difficult to leave, and impossible to forget."

– G. Randolph

Ricky, along with few other people, has been in Grammar for his entire academic life. Although he is reputed as the best mathematician and badminton player in the province for his age, he is always humble, even sometimes resentful of his achievements, for it has spawned monikers such as "Math camp". Never known to take notes, or even be attentive in class, Rakesh always managed to beat a certain few classmates by a point or more on every test. His fashion sense often changed, but never his style, as Ricky progressed from a sophisticated, glasses-wearing Niner to a suave, contact-lensing Senior. Another of Ricky's prevailing characteristics is his ability to stare adversity in the eye, and conquer it. That talent will no doubt hold true for the remainder of Ricky's life, so long as he always remembers his beginnings.

RICKY Gupta

We are the music-makers,
And we are the dreamers of dreams,
Wandering by lone sea breakers,
And sitting by desolate streams.
World-losers & world forsaken,
On whom the pale moon gleams:
Yet we are the movers & shakers
Of the world forever, it seems.

— Arthur O'shaughnessy

Matt Mack

When Matt came to the Grammar School in grade 11, the reaction was, "That's not a real tattoo is it?" and from that moment on, Matt became a truly unique part of the school...that is, until his brother came, and then no one really who they were talking to. What stands out most about Matt is his undying faithfulness to the Royal family, which is exceeded only by his admiration for the US. His amazing speaking ability, nonconformist opinions and plethora of trivia (eg, quoting the constitution!) Have led him to be an invaluable member of the debating team, and resulted in a truly heart-rending speech that won him the position of Head of Finance. Though, after his anarchist gets through with being in Student Executive, god only knows what will be left for his successors! He has epitomized the HGS debating team with a truly sportsman-like attitude and his relaxed approach. Though, I do think preparing the day of debate took some getting used to for Matt. He has, with a subtle craziness all his own, shown that debaters know how to have fun! And of these days, he'll also figure out where the fitness room is (ah Kingston!). Thanks Matt, it's been a hilarious two years. Even the mayor would think so!

To Mom and Dad, Srin and Kielty... thanks for everything
Assalamu-alaikum

Jared Harnish

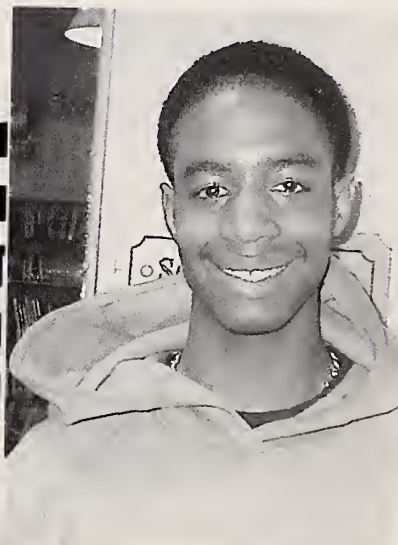

We haven't seen Jared, (a.k.a. Gary, TT, Spry-face) in about four months now. The FBI has been looking for him for quite a while. He's wanted in 7 countries for "leaving" Spryfield, a crime that warrants the death penalty. When last spoken to, he claimed his motives were, "ambition and a want for success in life." He will NOT rest until he has been fully incorporated into normal society. We must stop him from contaminating everyone else. He is equivalent to a Class-5 biohazard. He is also fluent in German and French and very talented at peeing in a cup. A very handsome, talented, wonderful young man with the alias of Lois is also wanted for the aiding and abetting of this fugitive in TT's efforts to be "ordinary." He was last seen splashing around in the kiddie-pool at the Digby Arena. A reward of a free haircut and manicure are offered to any of those who provide information leading to his arrest.

JEREMIE

Jeremie Hayward

Jeremie spent only one year in HGS but he made many friends amongst the graduating class. He was an avid soccer player and his skills were good enough to boast about. He was the key defensive player on the HGS varsity soccer team, and his playing style was known by many to be consistent and solid. People knew Jeremie as "Jarreau's brother" but his big, fat grin and cunning wit made him worthy of being distinguished from his sibling. In school, Jeremie was usually teasing Lindsay or laughing with Ryan about the differences between Bermuda and Canada. He strongly condemned the existence of modern rock, and preferred rap or hip-hop instead (or that crazy Bermudan reggae-like music). Best of luck in the future Jeremie! You left our school as a true Gryphon!

JONATHAN

Jonathan Himmelman - a.k.a. John, Mimmel, Himo

Jonathan came to HGS in grade 10. He made friends quickly and always appears on the honour roll. He's the smart guy with the handsome face and the big smile, which makes it hard to stay mad at him for long. He enjoys swimming and cycling, and loves his work as a lifeguard and swimming instructor. Good luck Jonathan! HGS will miss you, especially your great persistence (certainly not stubborn) to prove that Kris Skiba is absolutely wrong.

"All generalizations are dangerous, including this one." -Alexandre Dumas

"Shut up~! I'm talking." -Jonathan Himmelman

"No, you're wrong Kris." -Jonathan Himmelman

"Rob, that's just dumb." -Jonathan Himmelman

Alyson Horne – a.k.a Rudi, Diva, Horne-Douma

Alyson "Reverse Mullet" Horne, has endured many things in her four years at HGS. She has weathered the curse of the Jonathans, far too many jokes about German sailors, exhibitionism (performing at R.L.D. in Boston), and the inability to get any "gourmet" ice-cream. Haunted by her reputation for "good" music presentations, Alyson has tried desperately to move beyond the status of "rudimentary" music student. And, despite singing her heart out in auditions, Alyson has consistently failed to get a decent role in the HGS musical. However, she has excelled in German class! Remember Alyson: Wohin ist der hoffschwerzen? In das boot! Haha! But let's get serious. With her drive to succeed (even if it means trampling others underfoot, or arguing with them until they just can't listen anymore), and her keen fashion sense, Alyson will no doubt enjoy a prosperous future. We'll never forget you Alyson, and that one magical summer.

Michael Kielty

MIKE

Mike came to HGS in grade 11 from King's-Edgehill, and he somehow fit into our student body, full of strange kids without a problem. Perhaps it was because he talked to himself during class, but now that I think of it, he was probably talking to me... But I also remember his funny grunts and yawns during class and they definitely help forecast his reincarnation as a wonderful cow somewhere in Newfoundland. No, but all jokes aside, Michael was an extremely serious guy who took great risks. Once, after being told by his chemistry teacher to wear his safety goggles, he carried on with his experiment and ended up blowing copper chloride into his eyes (it was amazing). After that, we forgot about the experiment and analyzed the reaction that took place within his eyes. "Ohhh Sugar! Is this bad Mister Beeezzzleee?" said Mike while his eyes were dangerously bloodshot. Speaking of his eyes... the ladies in our school absolutely adored his "pretty" eyes. As a result, he was given names such as "pretty eyes," "pretty boy," or "Mike, stop wearing mascara." You know, Mike's actually got a great sense of humor, but in order to realize this you really need to stop laughing at him and start laughing with him. Trust me, this guy is hilarious and he can be a great friend. He's a pretty darn dependable guy and a dexterous note taker. All of his friends wondered why his marks were so good, but there's no doubt about it: this guy's a genius. He may have asked a few pointless, rhetorical questions during class that disrupted us from learning normally but he was actually thinking hard. I see Mike in the future, sitting in a fat, fluffy chair on the top floor of some office building. He will be counting his money and his female secretaries will be going bananas over his charming looks. Matt Hack will remain as his good friend, and he will most definitely play an important role in providing the necessary "connections" for Mike's business. And of course, they will continue living in Sirini's basement, happily ever after. Mike, you will be missed!

-Ken

Lauren Lindsay

LAUREN

Anyway, Lauren "Sizzler" Lindsay has been attending HGS since the tender age of seven. Excelling in History, English, and Latin (other subjects...not so much), Lauren has a fine career ahead of her at the Oxford Movie theatre, dealing with idiotic customers who think the butter is coloured oil. Lauren informs me that it is actually a butter/margarine blend. Delicious! Should her career in the entertainment industry fall short, Lauren can always fall back on her astounding goalie skills (two time National Champs...eat it!). With Lauren's sharp wit, purty eyes, and love of cutting her own hair, she has the potential to succeed at anything. However, we're betting that she'll end up married and wandering around a houseful of screaming infants cursing her fertility...all before her twenty-fifth birthday. Good Luck with all that Lauren! And remember: We kid. We kid 'cause we love.

"It's very simple dialectics. One through nine, no maybes, no supposes, no fractions – you can't travel in space, you can't go out into space, you know, without like, you know, with fractions – what are you going to land on, one quarter, three-eighths – what are you going to do when you go from here to Venus or something – that's dialectic physics, OK? Dialectic logic is there's only love and hate. You either love somebody or you hate them." – Photojournalist, Apocalypse Now

JAMIE L

Jamie (a.k.a. Lois, Jam Jam Lou, Project) is the most well rounded person I know. He can do anything, from flipping balls on the soccer field to ballroom dancing. He's well known around these parts for his good looks and his boyish charm. His sweet talking ability has been known to get him good marks and many ladies (especially Mme. Smith). There isn't a time that you don't want him around; he's always able to put a smile on anyone's face, even if it just means looking at how sad he looks. I don't know a single person that has met him that has not come to like him. However, this is all just an act that he puts on whenever he's around anybody else but me! I've had the misfortune of knowing this angry, bitter, little man well enough to have figured this out. I don't think I'll ever forgive myself for being his friend. To whomever may read this in the future, beware! Don't fall for charming act! Although Lois is a crude, little lad, he's giving a lot of life to a school that needed it badly. Look for him in the future anywhere there is a challenge or a chance for him to hurt himself terribly.

"Break it down like this" – Dr. Terrence Craig

Right on, Dr. Craig.
A slice of life:

JESSICA McLELLAN

Seb Lancelot, Peter Benstead, Donal Corkum, Neil Durling (class of '98)...She made a lot of good friends at Glamour School. The Princess first danced up and down and up our halls in grade 10 with her smiling face and blindingly glittery clothes (what's up with that matching thing, anyways?) and no one has been the same since. We'll remember her for her gymnastic abilities (naked cartwheels anyone?), her stripteases à la Demi Moore and her impeccable personal hygiene. We loved her crazy stories (we're still waiting for your Gap Kids commercial! and we'll never think of sausages the same way again!!), the trips to value village, her multitude of neighbors (but only one at a time), her love of biology and math (mmm...tutors) and her crazy dating philosophy ("I'm just not that kinda girl; it's just not my style"). You've taught us about "the bum sex" and we've taught you the value of talking about people behind their backs, not in front of their faces. See you on some beach, somewhere, with surfer boy! You are a Kung Fu Ass Kickin' Queen- MGKYO. Don't ever forget that rhinestones will never go out of style and that we love you forever Jesclub!

"I love you. You're gEorgeous" – Heath Ledger

△ Adrian Mendez em

Adrian first graced the halls with his presence in Grade 7. He was always able to rouse a laughter out of anyone, even unsuspecting teachers, with his stories of when he was a little girl, or with his expansive knowledge of females. At times he was considered a rough character, due to his association with the much-feared "posse." The saying goes that people change with time, and this does hold true, somewhat, in the case of Mr. Menenendez. After a 2 year sabbatical in Bolivia, he returned with tales of love and folly. Recently, he has reinvented himself as a stylish, suave, master of the ladies, with a passion for guitar. Adrian has even entertained the idea of going to the Canada Games for ping-pong, which obviously was not fulfilled, as he still has neither fame nor fortune. Good luck and best wishes to the best of friends, who will no doubt have an interesting future ahead of him.

▷ Alastair Moir em

What can you say about Alastair "Allstar" Moir? That his infectious smile lights up the hallways to HGS? No. It's more often just a sly grin. However, Alastair has brought a certain "something" to the school since transferring from the isolated, bitterly cold wastelands of Dartmouth to attend HGS for the second grade. Whether it be sadistically beating others in the Geography Challenge, or sadistically beating others in school tennis tournaments, Alastair enjoys sadistically beating others. He has also excelled in his subjects, despite the facts that he a) has a tendency to "forget" exactly when Christmas and summer holidays end and b) his notes appear as they were written by an ape with a severe case of carpal tunnel syndrome. Where will Alastair be in ten years? In the diplomatic corps? In the gutter? Or perhaps just swaddled in a smoking jacket, enjoying a nice snifter of brandy in front of a roaring fire. In any case, we can be sure that he will be sadistically beating others. God speed Alastair!

"I say, when life gives you lemons, wing 'em right back and add some lemons of your own!"

-Calvin (Bill Watterson's Calvin and Hobbes)

▷ Evan Morton em

▷ Awww Muffin...this bright eyed boy has graced us with his presence for the last two years. Evan is loved by all, aka BA. Girls are attracted to his love of the Simpsons, his stellar soccer skills (Captain of the soccer team), and his perma happy smile. Evan may come across as shy, but we all know him as being "Mr. Too Good" and ironically a part of the Bedford Boyz. If you see Evan in the future he'll probably just keep walking, but be sure not to call the fox on his shirt a wolf -he will be offended

Evan Morton

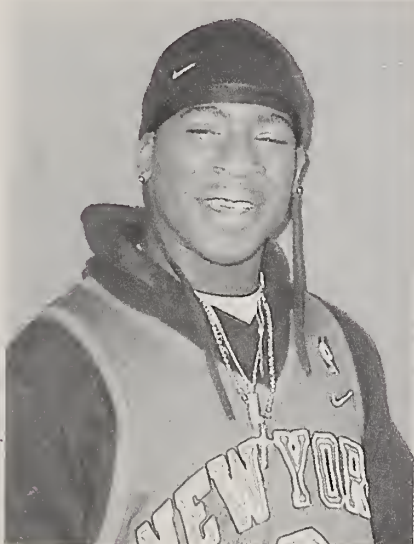

PATRICK MUNRO

I've known Pat for 6 years now, and in that time, he's never ceased to amaze me. He has displayed an unending wealth of talent in his time at HGS, academically, physically, and creatively. His quiet smile and pragmatic sense of humour has graced the dirty halls since the day he arrived. Pat has always been there for everyone with a kind word, a goofy story, or a sarcastic nod as needed. My best memories of Pat in our early days together were during lunch periods at Yul's house, which we'd spend perusing Korean comics and harassing Yul's younger brother. I don't think I'll ever forget the stupid little things we did together, getting each other in trouble, acting like miscreants, and complaining about the world in general. I think it's those moments that make us who we are, and when you've shared so many of them with a guy like Pat, you've held a rare privilege indeed. Let the randomness continue...

RYAN NESBITT

Ryan, aka Plabby came to Grammar this year from his native land of Bermuda. The "foreign" recruit has been an active participant on the Senior boys soccer team. He "has a natural light that he sheds on everyone he meets". You can find Ryan dancing around the halls, doin' his own thing. Plans for next year are undecided for Ryan, but I am sure wherever he goes he will be greatly missed by everyone.

FARHAN NOOR

After being requested (forced) a multiple number of times to dish out a picture for the yearbook I managed to find this old, charming photo of me in the eleventh grade. This being pretty much the only picture I have- since I happen to be one of the few rare people who do NOT have a camera, and happen to have a few friends (??), had to be the one I would submit. As you can see, I am quite the handsome fellow- look at the hairstyle, all messed up and wild, look at that smile- not even the Mona Lisa can compare with that. I could continue on and explain every wonderful detail OR I could quickly end up this short and poorly constructed write up with a statement that has no connection to the picture.

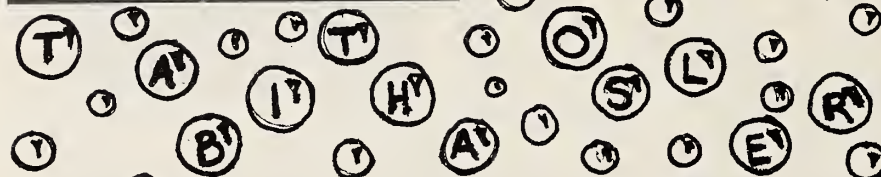

Remember kids, always study hard, for no matter what you will always need what you learn and will always somehow be tested in everything you know (especially when you sign up for a Biology course here at HGS).

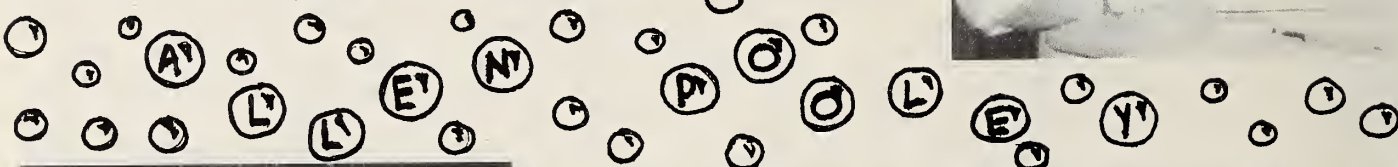

Having arrived all the way from SHSH, Sarah made her debut at HGS in grade ten, and was quickly known throughout the school as Sarah, thanks to MC. Although she could often be found either in the library frantically finishing her homework or in the gym shooting around, Sarah made her presence known in the halls of HGS with her crazy-long english and history essays, and her equally long blonde hair, which she managed to cut as few times as possible throughout the course of her high school career. Her height may have also made her stand out, but we're not entirely sure on that one. Whatever it was, though, Sarah was abreath of fresh air, always willing to share homework assignments or join in on the fun, whatever the occasion. That is, whenever she wasn't busy staying up until the wee hours of the morning finishing her work before her early-morning practices. Somewhere in her busy schedule she managed to find time to explore the city in the SSJ, and also enjoyed many outrageous experiences that taught her valuable lessons about love and life, along with one that had her patrolling Hollis Street with a QEH friend in the early hours of one summer morning (The wall of shame has your name on it). Good luck in the future; we know you'll succeed in whatever you do. I'll always remember you Slinky. And don't forget: you are bootylicious. -JR

Work like you don't need the money, love like you've never been hurt, and dance like you do when nobody's watching.
-unknown
It is better to have loved and lost than to have never loved at all. - Shakespeare

Tabitha (a.k.a. Rabi, Dirty-girl) was well known at Grammar for her conservative attire. She was lucky enough to be allowed to hang around those studs, Gary and Lois, day after day. Although she worked hard while she was in school, her heart was truly in Ontario, at a summer camp for trailer-park families, with a young man named Cletus. She would always come back, each fall, a changed person, a better person. It's somewhat of a shame that her clothes couldn't change as much. I'm not sure what she wants to end up doing, but I am sure that she's going to be the first person to see every square inch of the world. There's really not much I can say about her. She's one of the most intriguing people I have ever met. She's made my life better with each day that I've known her and probably others as well. She's always smiles and I'm going to miss her more than anything. Here's to the years darlin. May they never end.

If you're killed you've lost a very important part of your life - Brooke Shields
You know, if I were a single man, I might ask that mummy out. That's a good-looking mummy! - Bill Clinton refers to "Juanita," a recently discovered Inca mummy
Don't take life too serious. You'll never escape it alive anyway. - Elbert Hubbard
In the beginning the Universe was created. This has made a lot of people very angry and been widely regarded as a bad move. - Douglas Adams
I think Superman should go on the Larry King Show and announce that he would come back to like it people in all 50 states wanted him too. - Dave Barry
What I look forward to is continued immaturity followed by death. - Dave Barry
No, seriously, I have a great love for all...EXCEPT THAT WHICH I DO NOT LOVE. - Mike Mattocks
YOUR PERCEPTION IN WRONG. - Mike Mattocks

Greg Potter

"Afoot and lighthearted I take to the open roads
Healthy and free, the world before me.
The long brown path before me leading
Wherever I choose.

Henceforth I ask not good fortune,
I myself am good fortune.

Henceforth I whimper no more,
Postpone no more, need clothing,
Done with indoor complaints, libraries,
Querulous criticisms.

Strong and content I travel the open road."

-- Walt Whitman, Leaves of Grass

Jane Reid

Jane breezed into the Grammar School in grade eleven from Sacred Heart. Having left her kilt and tie behind, she became a true "Grammatarian". Between defending her horrible handwriting and her time-staking endeavors in the Art Room, Jane somehow found time to devote to her synchronized swimming. Jane quickly became acquainted with the staff at HGS. "Big L" will always remember her as one-third of the Three Musketeers (thanks to EH and SO) and Jane will certainly never forget her early morning "Breakfast with Boyles" (Mr. Boyle that is!) – for which she was always on time. She could often be found breaking it down on the dance floor of every school dance, or crusin the town in the SSJ aka "putt putt" Echo. Good luck Jane, we know that you'll succeed at anything you do!

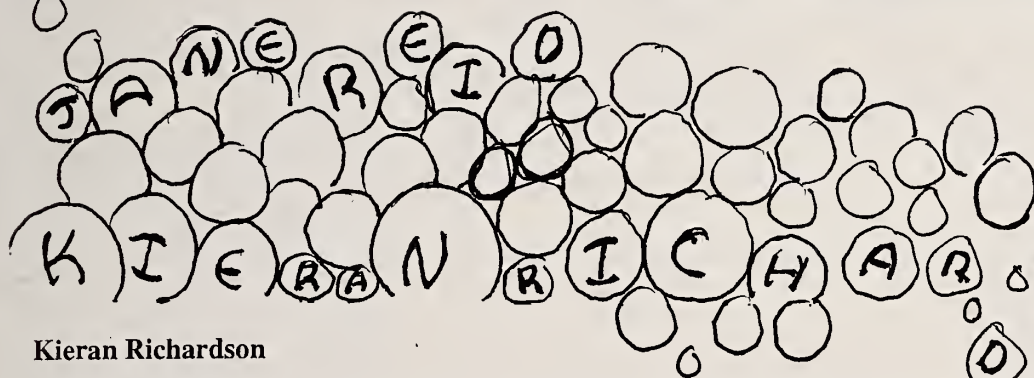

And never forget...you'll always be bootylicious!

"There is no end, there is no beginning, there is only the infinite passion for life"

- Federico Fellini

"Don't frown...you never know who is falling in love with your smile"

Kieran Richardson

Kieran will either become a rich internet tycoon, an evil criminal mastermind, a world class rugby player, or Heinz's ketchup's equivalent of Subway's Jarrod. Or maybe even a combination of two or three of the above. However you mix and match the possibilities, we'll all know he will carry it out with honesty, generosity, and probably an inappropriate comment. Whatever the situation, Kieran always stays positive and level headed; a particularly good quality considering he could snap you in half, tackle you, or send a flaming hack into your face. I hope he doesn't take anything we have said to him too seriously; because in a few years he will probably be our supervisor.

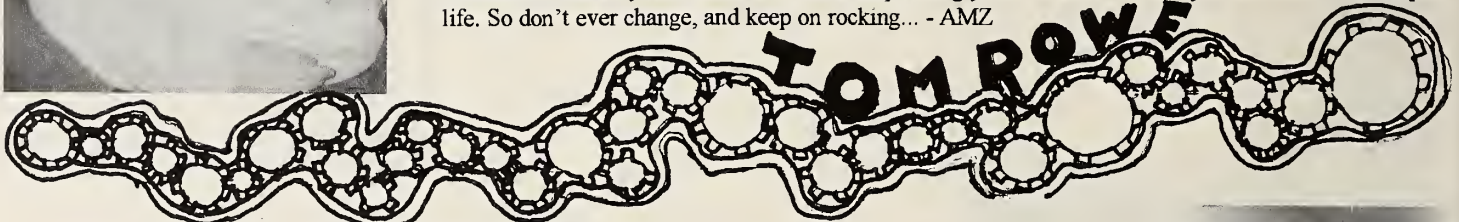

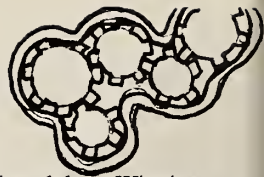

"Someday we'll wave hello, and wish we never waved goodbye." - BC

"To do great work, one must be very idle as well as very industrious." - Butler

Tom entered out lives in grade seven as a lonely, homesick (we've all heard those Winnipeg stories) boy who quietly roamed the school halls with his hands in his pockets. But soon enough, he took those hands out of his pockets and began to touch our lives. With his odd diet (Bubble-gum/cookie milkshakes) and distinct dress code (hoodies, ink-stained pants, and converse sneakers), everyone immediately knew that he was something special. Known for keeping our class under control (you know... like in Health class?), he was a born leader. And whether punching his way through his rock n' roll music or battling a mild case of scurvy, he always managed to make us smile.

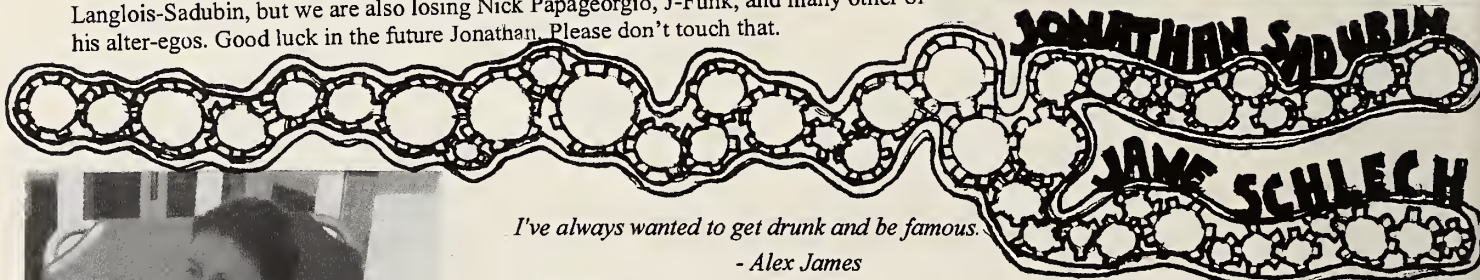

Tom, your infectious grin and boyish giggle has been etched into our memories forever. You have made life-long friends at this school and have made a huge impact on everyone you have met. Remember that all your friends will never stop loving you. We all know that you can, and will, conquer life. So don't ever change, and keep on rocking... - AMZ

"He's a peeping tom!" - Michael J. Fox (Marty McFly)

"Some people think of the glass as half full. Some people think of the glass as half empty. I think of the glass as too big. - George Carlin

Jonathan Langlois-Sadubin will go far in life. How can we know this? Not only has Jonathan led the best funk band in the city (J-Funk & The Crew) and exhibited his racing skills on and off the track, he has managed to survive 13 years at the Grammar School, which by the way, is his entire schooling career. Amazingly enough, he still manages to find the time to excel in school, although he can often be seen "flying behind closed doors, always" (thanks Frau!). HGS has given Jonathan enough memories to last forever, from Book Buddies in Primary to the endless lunchtime cruising sessions in the Black Stallion (fully equipped with top-notch Corinthian leather car bra,). Alas, his sweet cherub's voice and Schwarzenegger imitations will no longer be heard echoing through the halls, as Jonathan's time at HGS has come to an end. Not only are we losing Jonathan Langlois-Sadubin, but we are also losing Nick Papageorgio, J-Funk, and many other of his alter-egos. Good luck in the future Jonathan. Please don't touch that.

I've always wanted to get drunk and be famous.

Husband... negative. Mafia connection... negative. Tight little package... affirmative.

- "Pat Healy", There's Something About [Jane]

Jane Schlech: Honours student. Soccer superstar. Debater wannabe. Musical ham-actress. Over the years, Jane has been many things to many people. Perhaps you've been the anonymous recipient of her affections at a school dance. Perhaps she's smashed your face in at a soccer game...or anywhere. Her relentless optimism and complete lack of morals has both charmed and chafed her friends for decades (at least it seems like decades). If this were a personals ad, I would mention Jane's beauty, intelligence, and great smelling hair. But it isn't. In the future, Jane hopes to move to Mumbai and become a star on the Bollywood circuit. Or, perhaps set up shop as a masseuse on the beach in Australia (Crikey!). Or maybe, just maybe, in ten years we'll find her lurking in the bushes outside Harrison Ford's nursing home. We're sure she'll be happy, whichever path she takes. Remember Jane: Regulate.

For the past 11 years Kris has graced the halls of HGS. Some of his more memorable contributions range from Team Discovery, to the common room record player, to the election campaign of 2001. During his frees "Skiba" could most frequently be found hacking in front of the school or roaming the halls gathering accessories for the common room. Despite the large quantity of time he spent in the woods Kris still managed to make great discoveries every garbage day. One thing's for sure, the school will be a lot quieter with out him.

"Don't Even think About it SKIBA!!" - Cambell & Lawson.

Sailing....Girls....Corona....Sailing....Track

We tap that Rob. Rob first came to us in grade seven and graced us with his boyish good looks. With his characteristic phrases and laid-back attitude towards... everything, Rob embraces every moment and makes it his own. You can always be reassured by Rob's huge smile and his "no bigs" theory. He is always there to help you, whether it be in math, or in starting a standard car on a hill. (Listen to that Jett!) Rob excels in all he puts his mind to and always manages to have a good time. Rob, your focus and dedication to what you love is bound to get you far. Remember: Just Giver!

MMMMMM GIRL!

Ken Unuvar - a.k.a. Sweet Kenny G, Kendo, Uni, Bruiser, Keno, Smoothie, Ken-chan Looking back, I just wonder how the heck I ended up here... I was born in a quiet suburb near Tokyo, and spent the early years of my life living in both Japan and Korea. My first day of school was in the Hyundai Foreign School, back when I was just a wee little kid in Korea, and I remember this day very clearly. I was unbelievably nervous so I literally dragged my mother into school and kept her locked inside for the first few hours. But of course, like any other mom, she cunningly escaped and from that point on I was left to face the beginning of my extraordinary childhood. A few years later we moved to Japan and I attended the Yokohama International School with my older brother. It was there that I made most of my life-long friends and Yokohama had clearly become my home. But as you expected I soon left: this time to Singapore and I spent a comfortable 2 years in this high-tech city. Singapore was an awesome place but the weather was harsh. The Singaporeans live through 12 months of summer each year. But in Ireland, the people live through 4 seasons a day, and this amazing country had become my next destination. Part of my heart still remains in Dublin, where I was mingling with the locals and bantering with my friends using Irish slang like, "Will ya cope on you egeet, stop being such a knacker!" My mates from St. Andrews College were stubborn in a way that they saw me as nothing but Irish, and luckily, so did the girls. But after all I ended up here, in Halifax and I've become like every other Haligonian. Now I'm driving on the wrong side of the road, holding my Timmies cup while saying things like "It's wicked EH?" After all, it doesn't matter where you're coming from. Just look at me. My background is "messed up" but in Grammar, people just see me as crazy, funny, "kendo, endo, smooth & like crescendo; got so much game they call him Nintendo. (Rap by Matt Boyle)" See you all in the future, 'cause once again I'm outta hcre!

"Everybody should believe in something: I believe I should have another pint!" - A classmate in Dublin

KRISTIN WHEATLEY

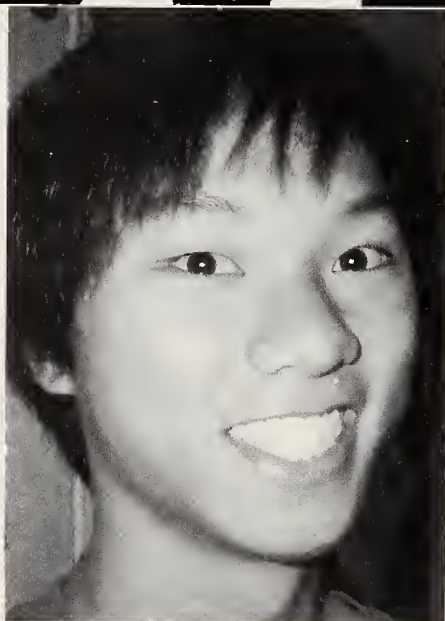

Kristin has walked these same halls for 13 year long years, but she collects pins, so it's all good. She has not only awed us with her academic excellence but also with her superb athletic skills ("Do we want to WIN, team? Or let everyone play?"). She has had countless adventures, from the good old days in Louisbourg and hypothermia hands in Quebec to girlie sleepovers in her basement and nights spent at the dock – I know there was something in those bushes and I'm pretty sure we could have made it across if those kids had been up to no good! You may have had to take off those hideous shoes, though, what were you thinking? Her taste in Value Village skin tight shirts is impeccable, though – Ninja Turtles rule! Too bad we didn't have rhinestone covered shirts for the Teen Dance (whose idea was that anyway?!). We will remember you as the best tea party partner ever, for freaking out when people wrote on days in your agenda you hadn't used yet and for you exceptional taste in boys (we still don't get it – there must have been good times...?)

Boyscouts for life – you salute us in Cancun.

Hailing from Newfoundla- uhhh, I mean Scotland, Eilidh (pronounced "A-lie-di-hi") came to us in grade eight. After some initial communication problems ("Ah cannae goo doon toon noo!") Eilidh fit in just fine, and could always be seen strutting through the halls making elaborate hand gestures, much to the delight of the mocking throngs. A slim blonde dynamo, Eilidh's enthusiasm knows no bounds! Except for French. She made her first friends in school through a common love of one Ewan McG, and many others soon followed. With them she's been on many adventures, from covert giggling in homoerotic films, to selling her body for a hamburger ("I was HUNGRY!"). We'll always have fond memories of the slanty shanty (it could work!), and Rickshaw Dave. Good luck in all your future endeavors (Soon you will be able to afford all the bran you want!). Remember Scroti: We'll always have Spewan. Mince.

"No Way, why should I change it? He's the one that sucks!!" – "Michael Bolton" (Office Space)

"Eilidh's the greatest, oh wait no, that's me!" – Muhammad Ali

Chris came to us in grade 7, and has certainly left a mark (some might call it a scar) on the minds of all of his classmates. A sketchy ball of hilarity and violence, there is rarely a loud scream, bizarre noise, or burst of psychotic laughter in the halls that does not have Chris as its source. Chris was known for coming to school in the morning without changing out of his pajamas, and his exemplary driving skills. One could always tell when it was getting close to the end of the day by the pained look on Chris' face, coupled with his nervous twitching. He was also the source of the famed "Man running away from ball of flame and then getting immolated" impression which he honed to perfection after many hours of practice. Chris managed to get through 6 years of Grammar school education without kicking more than a couple of people in the head.

AHMAD ZAHREEN

"How can you sum up 6 years of friendship into a blurb? How can you relate the amazing experiences we've shared in a paragraph? How can you give justice to one who has underpants that say "Love Machine" (given to him by his mother, no less!) in half of a page, let alone a yearbook? You can't. And this is just my predicament when I try to decide what to say about my best friend. I can start by mentioning the many times you have been grossly misunderstood ("Mayday, Mayday! I have a boner!"), or by talking about the time I stabbed you with a badminton racket (the scars will never heal), or by noting the wonderful array of haircuts you have graced us all with (like the heart-like wisps of grade seven, and the puke-green of grade 11). But I don't feel any of this does you justice. So I will simply try and put into words what you have meant to me, your classmates, and your school: You are exceptional. You have been a friend in time of need, a rock when someone needed strength - you are more than a once in a lifetime friend. You are a once in an eternity friend. I cannot imagine growing into the adults that we are now without you - you have shaped me and encouraged me to be the best person I could be. You have been a part of every happy memory I have of high school, and you are the best friend anyone could ever have. I love you, and you mean more to me than I could ever fit into a blurb. Take care of yourself, champ. -TR"

"When I was young I never realized how things related to each other. I once got hit in the head with a rock, at home that day I was allowed to play the piano. The next day I came home with another bump... this time I got nothing." - Dr Lozlo Pronowski

Valedictorian Address

Today we stand together, 46 people wobbling on the threshold between adolescence and adulthood, hoping someday we may step foot on solid ground. Each of us looks through our individual window of opportunity, trying to make some sense of this mess of possibility that lay outside the doors of this school. The world is big; the world is scary; but I am confident everyone in this class will find their own special piece of the world - their own solid ground. It is time to face the challenge of the world. Yes, Mommy and Daddy will still be there to help us out, but it is up to us now, to stand on our own two feet. I am sure everyone up here has mixed emotions today, but whether you are happy or nervous, be proud! This is a time of celebration, a time of opportunity, and a time every one of you is more than prepared for. It has always been my wish to make a speech like this, encapsulating the memories and feelings and relationships that I have shared with these people, my classmates, and I am so happy to have been offered the opportunity to make it. But when I first sat down to write it, I had no idea where to begin. There are far too many incredible experiences that I have had in this school to give them all justice in only ten minutes. It seems like yesterday we were urging Ricky to go to Math Camp or watching Mike blow chemicals into his eyes. It seems like last week, we were trying to pick up ladies on the Boston trip, or we were waving corner-flags around after we scored a goal in soccer. This class has so many important and humorous memories, that it is absolutely imperative that we remember them! And I know we all will. But it is not only the memories that will last a lifetime that I am thankful for.

There is a great appreciation for the fact that I have been given so much, and grown so much in this school. We need to remember that here, at HGS, is where it all began. No matter if you've been here for 13 or 3 years, when you walked through those two doors at Atlantic Street, your life changed. For the better, of course!

There were the tests, the quizzes, the assignments, the papers, the infamous group 4 projects, and who can forget Mr. Beazley's chemistry exams?

But even with all of this work, there was time for some play. Whether it was playing football at SMU, or creating the oh-so-famous "Ass-Ball", this class knew how to have fun, despite that harsh workload.

We need to remember that at HGS, although it was hard to see sometimes, the staff was always on our side. They've been through it many times; they know what this threshold is all about. The huge workload they would give us. They knew what they were doing. They were preparing us for the World. And for this - the knowledge and guidance the staff has given us, we cannot thank them enough.

Every teacher or coach at this school cares very deeply about the well being of their students. What other Headmaster comes to almost every sporting or artistic event the school has and is the loudest cheerleader? What other teacher around can provide the intellectual challenges Mr. Marchand does in our school? While our staff is demanding, they do not breed an army of identical soldiers, but rather celebrate the individual and embrace the many talents of each. No other staff in this world could compare to what we have here, at HGS and the impact and effect that they have had in the roots of our lives is immeasurable. They are a unique group of professionals, who provide the foundation on which HGS stands. Ultimately, they are not only mentors, but friends.

And who can forget the parents? They're the ones who had to foot the bill for this whole thing! We have to see that through all of those groundings, lectures, and nagging, they only wanted what was best for their children. That's why they sent you to HGS, because now as we stand together and they see the people we have become, that bill begins to seem much smaller. If it wasn't for our parents' care, we wouldn't be at HGS and we would not be as prepared as we are. Graduates, please make sure you tell your parents how much you appreciate what they have done for you. It's a small task in comparison to what they have done for us.

So teachers, staff members, parents, and coaches, we thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

Specifically, I'd like to thank Mr. Luke Lawson on behalf of our class. Mr. Lawson has been at HGS for 10 years and like some of the graduates, is a lifer, and like all of the graduates, he is moving on to new opportunities. He worked extremely hard at HGS and will be impossible to replace. He, however, would be the last to complain about the amount of work. The man loves students and loves teaching. One thing you could always count on in the morning was Mr. Lawson's bright smile while opening those two front doors at Atlantic Street.

"Where's the CAS diary Matthew?" He'd say with a giggle. Mr. Lawson is one of everyone's favorites. He made every student feel important and confident, taking every step necessary in making sure that everyone he knew had a great day. I know he made many of my days a whole lot better and has made everyone in this class feel important. "You're the man!" was Mr. Lawson's catch phrase, but I think everyone in this room agrees that if we can grow to be even half the "man" that he is, we will have successfully matured into incredible people. Mr. Lawson, you will be missed dearly, and I can honestly say that, "YOU, are the man."

I would now like to read a quote that I feel exemplifies my message to the graduates today; that is, to strive for excellence.

"There are countless ways of achieving greatness, but any road to achieving one's maximum potential must be built on a bedrock of respect for the individual, a commitment to excellence, and a rejection of mediocrity."

~ Buck Rodgers, past vice-president of IBM

Graduates, my message to you today is to strive for excellence. You've proven it to your peers, your teachers and your parents that you are all capable, now here is the tough part, going out and doing it in that scary world! Excellence can be defined many different ways. Some of you want to become rich and powerful, some want to complete med-school, and some want to help the less fortunate. Whatever your definition for excellence is, make sure you do everything you can to reach that goal, because with the tools we have been given at this institution - there is nothing that is out of our reach.

Be optimistic; no goal has ever been achieved through being passive and pessimistic. Whatever life throws at you, adapt to the change and do not be thrown off your path to excellence. Change is the only constant in our world, so get used to it!

Fight through failure; no goal will ever be achieved by giving up. Michael Jordan wasn't good enough to play high school basketball, but that did not stop him from becoming the greatest basketball player ever; Winston Churchill could not get into Oxford or Cambridge Universities because the professors doubted his potential, but that did not stop him from becoming the Prime Minister of England and one of the greatest leaders ever. Failure is a blessing in disguise; fight through it; learn from your mistakes and succeed. Do not allow yourself to ever feel mediocre, because each and every one of you is a magnificent, exceptional person that I feel honored to share this room with today.

Sponsored by Mr. Maqbool Zaheen and Mrs. Parveen Ahmad

Now is the time to make that decision - this decision of excellence. Graduates, I want you to decide now that you are going to be excellent and never allow yourself to doubt or think excellence cannot be achieved. There will be hard times, but I know we will all endure, overcome, and excel in our pursuit of excellence. Now is the time. So go out and find your special piece of the world - your solid ground - stand tall, stand with pride, and stand among the excellent.

Thank You
Matt Boyle '02

DEDICATION

Mr. Luke Lawson

HGS teacher
1992-2002

When it came time to decide to whom to dedicate the yearbook, the decision was unanimous. Mr. Lawson has been an integral part of the school for a decade, and has always been one of the most enthusiastic and dynamic teachers at HGS.

Besides teaching economics and history, Mr. Lawson was also the CAS Director, the IB Co-ordinator, the University Liaison Officer, and the Dean of Students. However, those were merely his official designations. Mr. Lawson did much more, like arriving at school early every morning to open the doors and greet the students, he was also always willing to do whatever he could to make our lives easier.

Mr. Lawson will always be remembered for his flamboyant teaching style, his sense of humour and ability to match the wit of his students.

Mr. Lawson has been both a friend and a teacher to the students of HGS, and his presence will be greatly missed. We wish him all the best in the future, and know that he will continue to play an important role in the lives of his students at Mulgrave Academy. Good luck Mr. Lawson!

HEADMASTER'S MESSAGE

This past school year was marked by the tragedy of September 11, which cast a pall around the world and, no doubt, psychologically scarred every member of our community. In September, we all asked ourselves how we were to cope with the many implications of such a tragedy. The answer came in immersing ourselves in the comfort of routine, normal, manageable challenges of work and play within the School.

It was understandable that, after such a tragedy, parents and the School would seek to create a bubble of security and success around our children in an attempt to preclude hurt or failure. In the United States, Headmasters responded that seniors were applying to colleges and universities close to home – a trend that raises the question, "Where can one go to be sure he or she is safe?" Paradoxically, it is because of the events of September 11, and what we have learned since, that we must let our children go. While the world is an unsafe place, it is the one in which our children live.

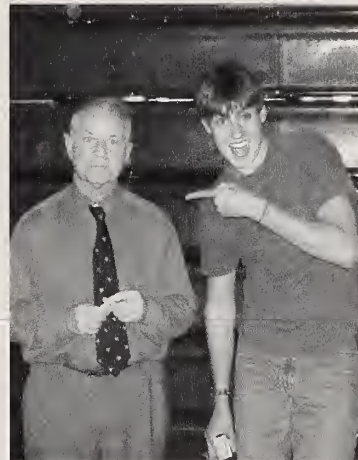

It was important, therefore, at HGS, that we resisted the impulse to be preoccupied with safety. There is a beautiful line in Tennyson's poem, Ulysses, in which he says, "How dull it is to rust unburnish'd, not to shine in use!" To shine in use implies to me an element of risk. And without risk, there can be no growth of any kind. He ends the poem with the words, "To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield." Dicey business, but that is the spirit that characterized the Class of 2002 and this past year at HGS.

This class will always be labeled as the graduating class of 9/11, but will always be remembered as the class that "shone in use." Godspeed!

Mr. John Messenger

"The sea is dangerous and its storms terrible, but these obstacles have never been sufficient reason ...unlike the mediocre, intrepid spirits seek victory over those things that seem impossible. It is with an iron will that they embark on the most daring of all endeavours...to meet the shadowy future without fear and conquer the unknown."

Ferdinand Magellan

A MESSAGE FROM THE EDITORS

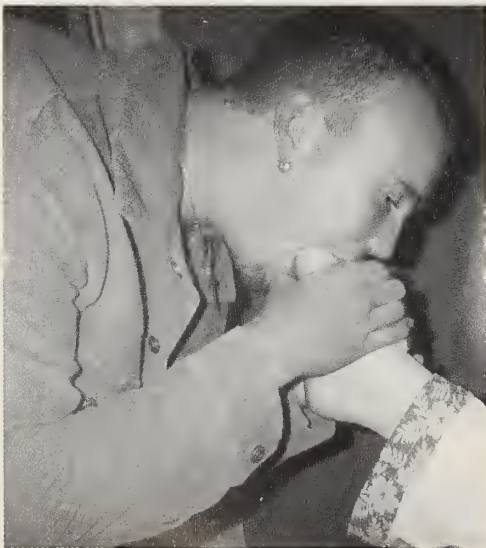

Greetings from the desk of Jane and Jared, your esteemed yearbook editors.

We had a great time putting the Grammarian together, and, as these pictures prove, an even better time partying after all that hard work. Still, when we stopped seeing double, we realized that we needed to thank some people. So thanks to those members of the staff that actually showed up, like Kristin, Kat, Eilidh, Jessica, and Vicki. A huge thanks to Lori Saunders for helping us every step of the way, and stretching the truth (a lot) in order to extend our deadlines. A special thanks also goes out to Dr. Frank Lo, for taking so many awesome photos at every event, and to Chris Wong, for being the official party photographer. Finally, we'd also like to thank Gay Silverman for helping with the ads, and Ms. Silver, for always helping out.

The graduating class of 2002 was many things. The best looking class? Yes. The smartest class? Of course. The class the most willing to get naked? You bet your sweet bippy. We hope this yearbook captures all those things and more!

Bye bye HGS, it was fun!
Jane Schlech and Jared Harnish
